VETERINARY USE OF BIOCOMPOSITES PRODUCTS

Biocomposites designs, manufactures and distributes medical devices intended for use in humans. The devices are distributed worldwide in accordance with national requirements including European and US regulations for medical devices.

Producing safe and effective medical devices for use in animals requires specialist design input and knowledge from veterinary practitioners, paying particular attention to the biology and pathology of the animal species for which the product is intended.

Biocomposites does not have expertise in veterinary science and as such cannot advocate the promotion or use of their products in animals and are unable to supply product or provide information or advice for such use.

Biocomposites directly prohibits its employees and distributors from the promotion and supply of Biocomposites' products for veterinary use.
